TEACHING EXPERIENCE

Over the past 30 years I have taught and/or created a variety of courses, undergraduate, Master's level, and PhD student level. My courses at Stanford included Psychological Anthropology, Culture and Madness, Sex and Gender, Symbolism and Society, and Fieldwork Methods, along with a few specialized seminars. My teaching at the University of Chicago included a section in the Core course of the Social Sciences Undergraduate Division (Self and Society), Comparative Human Development, Adolescent Development, Sexuality, Gender and Society, Seminar on Freud, Mental Health and Culture, and Sexuality Methods. At SFSU I have taught the Undergraduate Honors Seminar in Sexuality, Sex Differences, Sexual Cultures (Sexuality and Anthropology), and for the last 10 years have taught the autumn Seminar in Social and Cultural Theories of Sexuality, a core required course of all graduate students. A new seminar on Sexual Health and Rights: Gender, Reproductive and Sexual are planned for 2011. Graduate advisor, Stanford University (2 years), University of Chicago (Graduate Admissions, 4 years), SFSU (4 years).

- 1998-present Professor of Sexuality Studies, SFSU. Courses taught: Seminar in Sexual Cultures, Sexual Identities; Seminar in SocioCultural Foundations of Sexuality; Undergraduate Honors Seminar, Sexuality Studies; Anthropology of Sex and Gender. At SFSU, I created the MA program and have chaired 17 MA Committees, and have served on another 14 MA Committees. I have served as the Sexuality Studies Minor Advisor for 2 years at SFSU. I have also served on the PhD committees of approximately 10-12 students at other institutions. Currently I advise 6 graduate students, 2 undergrads, and I serve as the chair of 4 MA thesis committees.
- 2001 Distinguished Visiting Professor, Department of Sociology, University of Washington, Seattle; courses taught on Sexual Culture and Social History.
- 2001-2005 Director and Founder, Summer Institute on Sexuality, Society and Health, SFSU, a 4 week intensive open to students throughout the world. 6 academic units of credit. The SI has taught approximately 200 students from 8 countries and 23 states to date. Its theme for 2010 is "Sexual Health and Society."
- 1995-2000 Director and Founder, Summer Institute on Sexuality and Society, University of Amsterdam. I founded and taught more than 120 graduate students and professionals from around the world during these summer intensives; and also chaired the committees of M.A. student Mirjam Schieveld and the PhD committee of Jan Willem van Winjgarden, University of Amsterdam.
- 1985-1998 Associate Professor (1985-90) and Professor (1990-98), Committee on Human Development, University of Chicago. Courses taught: Cross-cultural Human Development; Seminar on Self and Culture; Seminar on Culture and Mental Health; Seminar on Sex and Gender; Seminar on Adolescent Sexuality; Seminar on Clinical Ethnography and Field work Methods.
- At Chicago, I served on the undergraduate Honor thesis committees of 3 students; the dissertation committees of 21 students, and I chaired or co-chaired 8 of these PhD committees; I also chaired 3 MA student committees and served on 6 MA thesis committees.
- 1979-1985 Assistant Professor of Anthropology, Stanford University. Courses taught: Sex and Gender; Culture and Madness; Sex Roles and Society; Psychological Anthropology; Ritual and Symbolism; Graduate Dissertation Writing Seminar.

At Stanford University, I served on the dissertation committees of 8 PhD students, and chaired 4 of these committees to the award of PhD; and I served as Undergraduate Advisor for 2 years and advised 5 students toward their B.A.

1972-1974 Teaching Assistant, University of Washington; Courses Assisted: Introductory Anthropology, Social Anthropology, Peoples and Cultures of the Pacific.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPERIENCE

Since 1979, I have served on more than a dozen international committees or agencies (e.g., WHO), 9 major national committees and academic committees (NIMH, SSRC), have chaired two major departments for 3 years or more, founded a major institute, founded two summer institutes, and sat on approximately 15 departmental and university-wide committees at 3 American universities. I have founded research centers at three American universities. I helped to create the International Sexuality Forum of Sexuality Resource Centers in the Ford Foundation Global Dialogue on Sexual Health and Well Being. A spin off of this Dialogue was my co-creation of a National Network of Sexuality Research Directors, that meets semi-annually in the US.

Founding Professor of Human Sexuality; built out Master of Arts Program in Human Sexuality; transformed Program into Department in 2008.

Created the National Sexuality Resource Center at SFSU, and worked to secure competitive funding from the Ford Foundation, which selected SFSU as its only Resource Center in the U.S. The first phase of this center involved the leasing of a public space off campus and its outfitting for the latest IT and staffing; the hiring of 8 staff, including a scientific staff; and the creation of a high profile web site to link academics and community based organizations in a new national dialogue.

The NSRC has critical links to David Satcher's (former Surgeon General, now President, Morehouse School of Medicine) initiative to create National Advisory Council on sexual health, and Richard Parker's (Chair of Sociomedical Sciences, Columbia University School of Public Health) International Working Group on sexuality and policy (both funded by the Ford Foundation).

2001 Founded NSRC Summer Institute at SFSU, which has trained more than 250 students and practitioners from around the U.S. in attendance for one month. I created a curriculum of 5 courses, hired the instructors, hired a coordinator, and created a unique practitioner-training program. We also obtained extramural funding from The California Endowment to provide an innovative practitioner training program with scholarships for people of color. The SI has taught more than 120 individuals.

- 2001 Chaired and oversaw the State of California approval of the Master of Arts in Human Sexuality Studies, the first such degree in California and one of the first of its kind anywhere. This process required more than 40 separate meetings, presentations, and briefings, and the cooperation of officials at 6 levels of administration.
- 2000 Founder and Co-Director, Institute on Sexuality, Inequality and Health at SFSU; an interdisciplinary unit that includes: a research center (Center for Research on Gender and Sexuality, Deborah Tolman, director, 2004); a national resource center (National Sexuality Resource Center, Gilbert Herdt, director).
- 1998 First full-time Director of Human Sexuality Studies at SFSU, selected via national competition from a pool of 100 applicants. I was invited to enhance a Program that previously had a large interdisciplinary faculty, but no infrastructure, tenure lines, or a program office. Since that time, the Program has hired 5 new tenure line people, Rafael Diaz, Deborah Tolman, Rita Melendez, Amy Sueyoshi, and Niels Teunis, each of them outstanding in the fields of psychology, history, and anthropology; and we have also hired 6 full-time non-tenure staff. I am responsible for all aspects of curriculum development, faculty assignments, committee assignments, and administrative and collegial links within the College of Social Sciences, the University, and with colleagues at other institutions.
- 1996 Founder and President, International Association for the Study of Sexuality, Society and Culture—first located at University of Amsterdam, now housed at San Francisco State University. This is the first new international organization devoted to the scholarly social and historical study of sexuality. ISSACS has sponsored bi-annual conferences in Amsterdam, Manchester, England, Melbourne, Johannesburg, South Africa; Australia, San Francisco, California.
- 1995 Founder, Summer Institute on Sexuality and Society, University of Amsterdam. This was the first summer intensive to be regularly organized and it remains the most significant training vehicle for international students. I recruited John Gagnon, Carole Vance, and other leading scholars to teach and staff the Institute during my leadership (5 years).
- 1990 Organizer and Convener, first of 7 international conferences, funded by: Wenner-Gren Foundation, and others, on AIDS and Anthropology, Sexual Theory and Culture, Beyond Boundaries: AIDS and Sexuality in International Perspectives, Amsterdam, Population and Sexual Migration, and Sexual Policy and Theory in the Time of AIDS, Bangkok, and Cheng Mai, funded by the Society for the Scientific Study of Population (Belgium).

- 1990-1991 Co-chair, Provost's Committee on Partner benefits, University of Chicago—resulted in the first major university to provide LGBT partner benefits in the United States
- 1990-1994 Founder and Primary fund-raiser, Evelyn Hooker Center for Gay and Lesbian Mental Health, Department of Psychiatry, University of Chicago
